

christians, jews flock to holy land

JERUSALEM (UPI)—An estimated 50,000 tourists flocked to the Holy Land today—Christian pilgrims to sadly retrace Jesus' steps to the Crucifixion, Jews for the joyous feast of Passover marking the exodus of their forefathers from Egypt in 1300 B.C.

Nearly 2,000 Christians made the solemn procession along the Via Dolorosa, stopping at each of the 14 Stations of the Cross before entering the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where the basilica marking the place Jesus is believed to have been buried was draped in mourning black.

Sunny skies and pleasant temperatures blessed the parade through the narrow stone streets of the old city of Jerusalem. Israeli troops, alert against the possibility of Arab guerrilla attack, remained out of sight.

The Christian pilgrims, some carrying symbolic crosses, were divided into groups according to their countries—the United States, Germany, England, Italy, Norway and Denmark were most prominent.

For Jews throughout the world, Passover began its eight days of celebrating the delivery of the Jews from 210 years of slavery in Egypt. It is Judaism's most joyous holiday, contrasting with the Christian solemnity of Good Friday.

Even as the holiday began, another group of Soviet Jews arrived as immigrants in Israel—a latter day Passover lending modern significance to the 32-century-old feast.

Tourist ministry officials said the two religious celebrations had drawn the biggest influx of tourists to the Holy Land since the 1967 Middle East war.

All hotels in Israel and Israeli-occupied Jerusalem were booked solid weeks in advance.

Passover commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from slavery in 1300 B.C. According to the Bible, Moses led the tribes of Israel from Egypt after God brought down ten plagues upon Egypt.

In their haste to leave, the Israelites carried with them dough which had not yet risen and leavened. During their flight, they baked this into flat cakes, matzoth, under the hot desert sun.

For the next eight days religious Jews will not eat or drink anything made from flour or from fermented grain. The beginning of the holiday saw the disappearance from market shelves of flour products and beer and liquor made from fermented grain.

For the past two weeks Israel's matzoth factories had worked overtime producing the wafers to supply the local and export markets.

The Jewish celebrations begin at sundown with the seder, the traditional holiday feast and the reading of the Hagadah—literally the tale of the Passover.

The first two days and the last two days of Passover are full public holidays in Israel and the middle four days are semi-holidays, when workers traditionally work only half-days.

Inside the walls that Herod built around the old city, Christians dressed in mourning black chanted the dirges for the dead and re-enacted Christ's journey to his crucifixion along the Via Dolorosa—the road of pain.

Led by a pilgrim carrying a replica of the cross, Christians from all over the world followed in sorrowful procession, stopping as Christ stopped at the stations of the cross.

The Basilica of the Holy Sepulcher, which tradition says marks the site where Christ was buried and arose from the dead, was draped in mourning black.

On Sunday it will emerge from mourning with the joyous message that Christ has arisen.

Helicopters dropping napalm on N. Viet

SAIGON (UPI)—Giant American Army helicopters are dropping slingloads of napalm on North Vietnamese troops besieging Fire Base 6 in the Central Highlands, front reports said today. B52s bombed within half a mile of the base.

Lt. Col. Frank O. Miller, 43, of Maitland, Fla., told UPI correspondent Robert Sullivan that CH47 Chinook helicopters were dropping sling loads of 55 gallon drums of napalm on the jungled hillsides between Fire Base 6 and companion Fire Base 5, four miles to the southeast.

Military sources said that when the drums are dropped from high altitude they burst open, spraying napalm over the jungle canopy. The napalm then is ignited with fire rockets from helicopter gunships to expose and burn out Communist troop concentrations.

Fire Base 6, about 270 miles northeast of Saigon, is near the point where the borders of Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam converge. South Vietnamese spokesmen said they were determined to hold it for the honor of the South Vietnamese army. Americans said the Communists were trying to capture it to prove the invasion of Laos was a failure.

Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzy, commander of South Vietnam's II Corps containing the Fire Base 6 area, estimated that 4,500 to 6,000 Red troops were in the original assault force and that they have been reinforced. His officers have reported killing 2,200 Communists there at a loss of 85 dead and 190 wounded. American officers at the scene said the Communist casualties were exaggerated and that the South Vietnamese had lost several hundred dead.

No major ground fighting was reported there today.

The South Vietnamese Command today officially announced the end of the Laotian invasion, 15 days after the last regular troops withdrew, but military sources said small unannounced strikes into Laos probably would continue.

The official summation said 13,841 Communists were killed and that the ARVN lost 1,445 killed, 41,106 wounded and 204 missing in the Laotian campaign. The Saigon troops said they destroyed 1,678 North Vietnamese weapons, 120 tanks, 297 trucks.

Vietnam dead exceed Korea War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon said today casualties in Vietnam now exceed the death toll of the Korean war.

Announcement of 88 deaths during the week ending Saturday—including 33 killed in the attack on Firebase Mary Anne—pushed the Vietnam toll to 54,284. The count started Jan. 1, 1961.

Korea claimed 54,246 American lives between Jan. 20, 1950, and July 27, 1953, according to Pentagon records.

The two totals include both those killed in battle and those who died for other reasons, such as illness or accident. Comparison of battle deaths is not possible because different bookkeeping methods were used in the two wars.

In Korea, 33,629 battlefield deaths were recorded. But these included only men killed in combat, and not those who later died of wounds.

In Vietnam 44,876 have died from "hostile causes" including both battlefield deaths and those who were wounded and died later.

Armies gain hold in E. Pakistan cities

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Pakistani army appeared to be strengthening its hold on the cities of East Pakistan today, and Indian military sources in Calcutta said the civil war there seemed to be settling into a Vietnam-type conflict to be fought out in the steaming coconut jungles and rice paddies.

A radio report from East Pakistan said 500 Pakistani foot soldiers moving behind an armored column gained control of Jessore City earlier this week and captured the Jessore headquarters of the rebel East Pakistani Rifles. Jessore is 24 miles from the Indian West Bengal border.

All India Radio said the Pakistani air force carried out 15 bombing raids, nine Thursday and six today, against the town of Rajshahi, near the Ganges River border with India, and that heavy fighting was reported at Dinajpur in the extreme northwest of East Pakistan.

Earlier, Indian reports indicated the rebel forces of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman had won almost complete control of the western part of the rebellious area which declared its independence from Pakistan on March 26. All India Radio said the rebels had won control of Lalmonarhat airfield near the Indian border in fighting in which each side suffered heavy casualties.

Radio Pakistan said the claims broadcast by Indian Radio had no relation to the real situation and that the "blatant lies and mischievous propaganda" about rebel victories were aimed at "boosting the sagging morale of miscreants, anti-state elements and infiltrators coming from across the Indian border."

Israel still ready to meet Egypt "any place, any time"

By United Press International

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said today recent statements by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "nearly destroys every hope for peace in the Middle East."

Mrs. Meir, in an interview published in the Tel Aviv newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth, said that despite Sadat's pronouncements "I am ready to meet him at any place, any time."

She said "we want a peace that will constitute the beginning of the road to human coexistence in the Middle East. President Sadat, however, does not cease talking of resumption of the fighting, and he dictates such terms to us that will enable him to get rid of us in the future."

"We thought Sadat would settle down and begin to tackle the problems of the Egyptian nation," she said, but "it seems to me that one can now doubt if this assessment was correct. Everything Sadat has said ... nearly destroys every hope."

Mrs. Meir's statements came at a time Israel and the United States were reported at odds over plans for reopening the Suez Canal. Diplomatic sources in Jerusalem said the United States wanted Israel to withdraw its troops up to 25 miles from the Canal, blocked since the 1967 war, while Israeli military experts would only reluctantly support pulling back 10 miles.

The Israelis also want ironclad guarantees pulling back will not militarily benefit the Egyptians.

In Tel Aviv, UPI Correspondent

Thomas Cheatham reported that Israel now appeared willing to at least give a little in the diplomatic maneuvering with Egypt. He said Israel political sources lent credence to reports Israel would give the United States a plan that not only included a partial pullback but also tacit approval for allowing Egyptian policemen to cross the Canal. Up to this point, Israel has never said publicly it would allow Egyptians to cross.

In Jordan, Palestinian guerrillas and Jordanian authorities appeared to be trying to take some of the heat out of their 14-day crisis. Guerrillas in trucks and jeeps left the capital of Amman with heavy weapons, apparently headed to mountain bases.

It's official: troika re-elected

MOSCOW (UPI)—Amid hurrahs of "glory," Soviet communism today re-elected the Kremlin troika and expanded the ruling Politburo with four proteges of party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The 24th Soviet Communist Party Congress ended with five-year mandate for the troika of Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorniy to seek general disarmament, mend fences with Washington and Peking and improve the consumers' lot.

The troika and the other eight incumbents on the ruling Politburo were re-elected to a Politburo expanded to 15 members. All four newcomers have a common patron—Brezhnev.

Cheers of "glory, glory" and wild applause greeted the announcement by an obviously pleased Brezhnev that the supreme leadership woven in 1964 remained intact.

Applause for Kosygin almost matched that for Brezhnev, the troika's "leader among equals" who stands to benefit more than any other Politburo member from that body's new, young blood.

The four new Politburo members are:

—Viktor Grishin, secretary of the Moscow organization of the party.

—Dinnukhamed A. Kunayev, first secretary of the Kazakhstan Party.

—Fedor D. Kulakov, a secretary of the Central Committee.

—Vladimir V. Shcherbitsky, premier of the Ukraine.

Brezhnev announced the new Politburo and his re-election as general secretary.

All five incumbent alternate members of the Politburo were re-elected. They sit in on Politburo discussions but have no vote.

Six-year-old boy may have rabies

VALLEJO (UPI)—Medical officials fear a six-year-old boy, bitten by a dog two months ago while visiting his grandparents in Mexico, is the victim of acute rabies.

When Honofre Angel first became argumentative and started thrashing about in bed at night, doctors thought he was a pneumonia victim.

He was admitted to Childrens Hospital Medical Center where Dr. Dilip Bhatt, a visiting fellow from India and an authority on the dreaded disease, said he felt Honofre's restlessness and petulance indicated rabies.

It was later learned that the boy was bitten in the cheek by a dog while visiting his grandparents near Guadalajara, Mexico in February.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Military spending will drop drastically during this decade as the United States moves from an era of confrontation to negotiation, Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard said Thursday night.

While approximately 125 young people paraded outside with signs branding him a war criminal, Packard told 300 delegates to the Western Electronics Manufacturers Association convention the Department of Defense was leaning toward less manpower and a greater capability under stringent economy standards.

Site of his speech was moved from a hotel near the Stanford University campus to a hotel in downtown San Francisco to provide more space for delegates and to improve security in the wake of threats by an antiwar group to disrupt the affair.

San Francisco police arrested about half a dozen demonstrators who refused to disperse after Packard finished his speech. The demonstrators were allowed to parade across the street from the Hilton Hotel.

There were no serious incidents. Packard told the assembled business leaders he was "ashamed" that they "got chased out of Palo Alto by the radicals."

"Those radicals outside want to destroy everything our country stands for," he said. "People like David Harris, Jane Fonda and others like them are our deadliest enemies. They want to destroy you as well as me."

He received a standing ovation when he concluded: "Don't let them do it."

The deputy defense secretary said military spending would be less than 30 per cent of the federal budget in the decade of the 70s while non-defense spending will average around 70 per cent. He compared this to a defense budget that totaled 50 per cent of the national budget in the 1950s.

"The Nixon Doctrine (which he identified as negotiation through strength) brought about the reordering of priorities," said Packard. "People on the Defense Department's payroll have been reduced from 3 1-2 million in 1968 to 2.4 million at present."

"We have moved from an era of confrontation to an era of negotiation. We are talking to the USSR about arms limitation ... attempting to solve problems with North Vietnam over a bargaining table ... bringing the Middle East into a period of negotiation ... and limited negotiations with the Chinese community."

Regarding the war in Southeast Asia, Packard said: "This war will not end when the U.S. forces go home. This war will end when North Vietnamese forces go home ... they are the aggressors."

One dead, one saved

PORT HUENEME (UPI)—A Navy helicopter crew on a training exercise Thursday discovered a 23-year-old UCLA student clinging to a capsized sailboat with one hand and gripping the body of his 19-year-old brother with the other.

Authorities said Jack Murphy Jr. told the crew his sailboat capsized in heavy seas Wednesday afternoon on a trip to Anacapa Island. He and his brother, Robert, donned life jackets and remained by the hull through the day and night.

Jack said Robert began talking incoherently shortly after midnight and died from exposure about three hours later—some six hours before the helicopter crew sighted the swamped craft seven miles off the coast.

He said he applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in an unsuccessful effort to revive Robert.

A second Navy chopper recovered Robert's body after Jack was taken in "fair" condition to the Point Mugu Naval Hospital in Oxnard.

Vacationing youths arrested

PARKER, Ariz. (UPI)—Authorities in Arizona and California report that more than 200 young persons have been arrested since last Saturday as thousands of students have converged on the Colorado River for the Easter holidays.

Most of the estimated

15,000 high school and college students, sleeping in bedrolls, tents and cars, have camped along the river in a 70-mile stretch from Bullhead City to Parker with a few scattered south as far as Yuma.

In Arizona, 52 arrests have been made in Mohave County and 54 in Yuma County while on the California side of the river 27 arrests were reported in San Bernardino County and 80 in Riverside County.

"We've got them on drunk and disorderly, minors in possession of alcohol, hashish, marijuana, seconal ... you name it, they've got it," said Deputy Jim Harris.

Zoo wolves maul boy

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—A 15-year-old boy severely mauled by four wolves at the San Diego Zoo Thursday was saved by three men who jumped into the enclosure and backed the snarling animals off.

The three men kicked at the wolves and kept them back until they were able to help the hysterical boy, David Williams, to safety.

Williams, of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., was taken to Mercy Hospital where he was in fair condition following surgery. A part of his scalp was torn off from the forehead to the nape of the neck and he also suffered deep bites in his arms, chest, thighs and lower legs.

Witnesses told authorities the boy climbed onto a three-foot high handrail and either jumped or fell 12 feet into the wolves' enclosure.

Jim Voorhis, Fallbrook, Calif., and William Graham, San Diego, both zoo visitors, jumped into the pen to aid the youth and they were joined a minute later by zoo security guard, Fred Markland.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Marianne Williams, was in a different part of the zoo at the time of the incident.

Probe for possible arson begins

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI)—Fire marshals started a "hands and knees" investigation today to determine if arsonists started a fire in the chancellor's office of the University of California at Santa Cruz.

The blaze gutted Chancellor Dean McHenry's office early Thursday and destroyed irreplaceable student and faculty records in the campus' second floor "nerve center." Damage was estimated at $250,000 to $500,000.

Santa Cruz firemen, who spent two hours bringing the predawn fire under control, said it could have been deliberately set.

"We'll just have to go through this stuff on our hands and knees to find out if it's arson," said Chief Ted McEwan. Investigators from the state fire marshal's office in Sacramento were called in to help.

McHenry said the blaze might slow fall admission announcements by six weeks, but added: "The show must go on."

The chancellor said his office was the "logical place" for a "demented" person to start a fire, "but it's a quite open question whether this was arson or that it occurred because of an electrical or gas line failure."

He noted the five-year-old experimental campus set in a redwood forest overlooking the pacific ocean was going through its "most peaceful year."

The campus, located 60 miles south of San Francisco, consists of five separate colleges "clustered" among the redwoods.

Enrollment is 3,700 students.

Six hope to become U.S. POWs

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A suburban father of three who says he is "my brother's keeper" flies to Laos next week with five others in the hopes of being traded for an equal number of American POWs.

With $926 round-trip tickets to Vientiane already purchased, the civilian, largely middle-age group wants to persuade North Vietnamese officials to take them as substitutes for U.S. servicemen held in Communist prison camps.

The group's leader, Dominic Cimino, 45, says the servicemen could then use the return tickets to fly home.

Cimino, a World War II Marine, began recruiting for the unusual prisoner exchange about four months ago. He got answers from 56 volunteers mostly World War II veterans, two of them prisoners of war in Germany.

"I went through the war," said Cimino, "and I was wounded but I came out alive. I've been fortunate and I want to give some other guy a chance to get married and have kids."

"I am my brother's keeper," said the suburban Monterey Park salesman, "and it's a code I've lived with all my life."

Against his wife's wishes, Cimino will depart

Wednesday accompanied by a Methodist minister, a retired Los Angeles fireman, an auto mechanic, a 21-year-old conscientious objector and a retired Air Force sergeant who joined for reasons of "humanity and Christianity."

The six believe they can convince the North Vietnamese of their sincerity and wind up in a prison camp for "a year or two at the longest."

Ping pong team in Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI)—An American table tennis team arrived here today on its way to Communist China for a series of "friendly matches" with China's world championship team.

The 15 members of the team said they were delighted by the surprise invitation to visit China and they would do all they could to promote friendship with the Chinese.

Officials and players insisted that the invitation, the first ever extended to an American sports group, and the team's visit were not politically motivated.

However, the sports aspect of the visit is strictly secondary to the possible political implications.

Graham Steenhoven, Detroit, Mich., president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, spoke at a news conference shortly after the team's arrival from Japan, where it participated in the 31st World Table Tennis Tournament.

"We rejected the thought," Steenhoven said when asked if he thought the invitation was politically oriented.

"The reason we are going there has nothing to do with politics. It will be a meeting of table tennis teams."

Steenhoven also said, "We may invite the Chinese players to visit the United States."

Pressed for a more definite statement about such an invitation he replied, "We will think about this."

Ralph Harrison, Wilmington, Del., chairman of the technical committee of the International Table Tennis Federation, said he and all members of the team were "delighted" by the chance to visit China.

"We look forward to a good time there," he said. "We will try to be as friendly as we can."

Erroll Resek, New York, N.Y., one of the players said the invitation "was like going to the moon. I never thought it would happen."

Resek, a native of the Dominican Republic who recently became an American citizen, said, "I would like to ask the Chinese to give me training in China. They are the best in the whole world."

Judy Bocheski, Eugene, Ore., a 15-year-old player, said she had called her parents to get permission to make the trip.

"They said okay," she said, "and I'm so delighted and excited."

The players were met by representatives of the China Travel Service (CTS), a semiofficial agency which handles all travel to China.

Steenhoven said he was told by the Chinese that the team will be leaving for China on Saturday.

CTS officials said the team will leave by midmorning train from the Kowloon terminal of the Kowloon-Canton Railway. A 10-member Colombian team, which arrived from Tokyo on the same plane, was to travel along with the Americans.

The train will take the members of the two teams to the Lowu border station where they will clear through British immigration and walk across a narrow covered bridge, which spans the Shumchun River, to the Shumchun border station on the Chinese side. There they board a train for a 90-mile ride to Canton, South China's largest city.

EIGHT OF 15 members of the Jesus Movement from Ft. Worth, Tex., posed for this picture on the lawn of the Valley Chapel yesterday. The eight and seven more of their young associates who are not shown proclaim their reliance on Jesus Christ. Some wore buttons, noting:

"Praise the Lord." In the picture are Paul Hamilton, Marilyn Hansen, Marilyn McNutt, Richard Stockton, Janet McDowell, Beverlee Morris, David Wilson and Steve Vistine. They will visit in the Valley through Monday.

'Happies' rely on Jesus

By VAUGHN PROCTOR Staff Writer

Fifteen young men and women visiting here from Ft. Worth, Tex., are called a lot of things because of their religion, but they prefer the term "Happies," — when they take time to think about it.

Eight of the young people posed at Valley Chapel on N Street yesterday to pose for a picture and tell some of the spiritual purpose that will culminate in an international Easter service Sunday.

The young people readily admit that they are often called "Bible Bangers," and "Jesus Freaks," because of their fervent commitment to Jesus Christ. The term "Happies," might be construed as a switch on the term, "Hippies," which they are not.

Actually they are part of the "Jesus Movement," that has attracted nationwide attention and thousands of youthful adherents.

Individually they have been part of the movement for as little as a month and as much as one year and came into the movement principally because of a "program of witnessing" at Grace Temple Church in Ft. Worth.

They range in age from 16 to the early 20s and are no different outwardly than young people anywhere. What are their plans for the future? As one put it, "I don't plan beyond the next 30 minutes."

How did they manage to get to California? "We wanted to come," said one, "but didn't have the money."

"We prayed," said another, "and somebody, I don't remember who, gave us the little money we needed."

"Praise Jesus," another added.

Their next meal, a place to sleep, the fates of tomorrow are things they don't worry about. "We put our lives in the hands of Jesus," another declared.

Thanks to the efforts of the Rev. David Chamberlain of the Valley Chapel, the young people will be adequately housed and fed for the duration of their stay.

What do they plan to do with their lives? Hopefully, several said almost in unison "we will find places in the ministry, either full or part time." Some already have secular jobs and some are going to college — but the interests are secondary to their religion.

What is the attitude of the young men toward the draft and military service?

"If the Lord wants me to serve in the military he'll tell me." One young man explained that the military doctors classed him 4-F despite the fact he is in perfect health and possessed of all his faculties. "The Lord didn't want me to serve and he wouldn't let those doctors put down anything except a 4-F classification," he related.

Jimmy Walker wins award

Jimmy Walker of 1304 W. Olive Ave., was the winner of a special carrier boy award for March by the Lompoc Record, Wes Huffman, circulation manager, reported today.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Walker, Jimmy, 12, had 20 new starts during the month and no complaints. He is in the seventh grade at Lompoc Junior High School.

Award winners since the first of the year are: Steve Wilson, Bud Dutra, John McNabb, Richard O'Neill, Clint Clardy, Ricky Reece, George Corn and Allan Cummings.

Massage parlor raid in LA

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Authorities raided 22 massage parlors Thursday, rounding up the more than 100 persons named in arrests warrants in the "largest prostitution vice raid in the history of the West Coast."

A spokesman for the sheriff's office said a number of massage parlors had opened in Los Angeles County during the past several years, with many of them placing advertisements suggesting more than a massage was available.

By late Thursday, 58 persons named in the warrants had been taken into custody, including 31 women.

Authorities acknowledged that prosecution could be difficult because some masseuses allegedly were coached by attorneys about recent supreme court decisions covering entrapment. In some of the operations, according to authorities, the patrol had to verbally request illicit sex, which would legally constitute entrapment if a police agent was involved.

District Attorney Joseph P. Busch said the 22 parlors were selected for a test of applicability of prostitution laws.

Sheriff Peter Pitchess said that despite the uncertainty of conviction, prostitution would be halted by the raids.

County may get $130,000 grant

County supervisors were urged today to lose no time in taking action on a matter that could mean a $130,128 federal grant to the Santa Barbara Metropolitan Transit District.

County-Cities Area Planning Council executive secretary Herbert H. Divilbiss informed the supervisors that the council-sponsored county comprehensive transportation action plan has just been completed.

The short range plan covering all modes of transportation for which there is data in the county is intended to meet the requirements of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. HUD requires such a plan as a portion of the Comprehensive County Plan, said Divilbiss, before apportioning transportation grants such as the one sought by the transit district.

Divilbiss said that speed in passing the resolution is necessary because all HUD and U.S. Department of Transportation processing procedures must be completed — following county action — by May 15, if the transit district is to get the $130,128.

The sum is the remainder of the grant which the district had been authorized in 1968 by HUD.

Supervisors to discuss SY, Lompoc airport

The Board of Supervisors today scheduled a discussion Monday at 11 a.m. on important matters concerning county airports at Santa Ynez and Lompoc.

An amendment to the lease between the county and Westerly Stud Farms, of Santa Ynez Valley, is proposed.

The County Airport Committee has adopted a policy regarding the subleasing of hangar spaces at county-owned and operated airports, it was explained by Assistant Public Works Director Paul E. Price. Price said the policy now is that there will be no subleasing of hangar spaces by the hangar lessee.

Recently, the supervisors in approving the pact with Westerly Stud Farms for housing of its controversial Lear jet plane reportedly allowed the Santa Ynez Valley ranch to be in a position of subleasing hangar facilities it would build at its own cost and later turn over to the county.

Price said the policy as adopted provides that if the lessee of a hangar space vacates his hangar for an extended period of time and desires to sublease the hangar, then arrangements will be made with the fixed-base operator to manage the subleasing.

Hangar spaces will not be leased or subleased for any

Water budget on agenda

The Water Commission, Monday will consider a recommendation on the departmental budget, take another look at water release proposals at Cachuma Dam and hear a report on the city's water rights underground.

The commissioners will meet in special session in the City Hall at 1:30 p.m., to act on the agenda originally set for the regular meeting which was canceled for lack of a quorum on April 5.

Other agenda items include a report on the state water plan by commission chairman Virgil Phelps and Mayor Arthur Scott; a report by public works director Ken Dawson on desalinization studies; and a report on the Lompoc Project by Phelps.

purpose other than the hanging of aircraft, said Price.

The County Airport Committee's policy-making action was advisory only and must be ratified by the supervisors to be effective.

The supervisors Monday will also consider a hangar agreement with Santa Ynez airport fixed base operator, William J. Luke, Jr. and with Lompoc Flight Service, Inc. for the Lompoc Airport.

Dinner

DINNER — The Pythian Sisters of Mission Temple No. 69 will serve fried chicken with mashed potatoes, gravy, biscuits, green beans, tossed salad and sherbet at the Knights of Pythias Hall at North N St. and W. Laurel Avenue Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Donation: $2 for adults, $1 for children under 12. Public invited.

SCHOLARSHIP — Applicants are now being taken to determine this year's recipient of the Julius Nasatir scholarship. William Loy, scholarship committee chairman of Central Coast Counties Pharmaceutical Association, stated that this year's grant will be awarded May 31 to the most deserving pharmacy student that applies. The memorial was established upon the untimely death of the founder of the Association, a professional society composed of pharmacists from Solvang and Lompoc at the southern boundary to Paso Robles in the north. Anyone wishing an application blank is asked to write Loy at 1775 Oceanaire Court, San Luis Obispo. Only primary requirement for consideration of the grant is that the prospective recipient be currently enrolled as a student in a school of pharmacy.

THEFT — Edward Marshall, 321 W. North Ave., Space 173 has reported the theft of his 1965 motorcycle, police say. The theft was reported yesterday.

ACCIDENT — Dian Webb, 23, of 716 N. E St., Apt. 3, and Joseph Alan Mando, 22, of Erie, Pa., escaped injury in a collision of their cars last night on Highway 1, but the two vehicles sustained major damage, according to the California Highway Patrol. The accident occurred at 5:45 p.m., in front of the drive-in theater north of Lompoc. Both drivers were northbound when the Webb car reportedly hit the rear of the other car.

OFFICE — The District Office of Congressman Charles M. Teague will be open on Tuesday, from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at the Post Office Building in Santa Maria. Congressman Teague's Santa Maria office will be attended by Mrs. Kathryn M. Keith, field assistant. Anyone wishing to make a contact at any time may call WA2-4491, an answering service.

Dear Abby

Let your husband show his emotions

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a highly emotional man. Last evening we went to a very sad movie, and Dennis cried like a baby in all the sad parts.

When Dennis cries, he blows his nose a lot and his eyes get red, and it's very embarrassing to walk out of a theater with a man who looks like a little boy whose father just worked him over in the woodshed.

It doesn't have to be a sad movie, either. When we see funny movies, Dennis laughs so hard he cries. I knew he was emotional when I married him, so may be I shouldn't complain, but I wish there were some nice way to tell him to please try harder to control his emotions in public. After all, it's only a movie.

EMBARRASSED: Of the many "cultural refinements" in our present-day society, the notion that it's "unmanly" for a man to cry is one of the physically damaging. There is no reason why a man should feel more ashamed of expressing an

New officers are chosen by Alpha Rhos

Mrs. John Roth is the newly elected president of Alpha Alpha Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Also elected at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Bob Bullock April 7 were: Mrs. John Lowrey, vice president; Miss Jo Ann Sanders, extension officer; Mrs. Don Loerch, recording secretary; Mrs. Russ McIntosh, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Bob Bullock, treasurer.

For the program on drama, members and their husbands attended the play "Oh, What a Lovely War" at Allan Hancock College Performing Arts Theater. In the last two weeks several members attended the spring show of Lompoc Valley Art Association and other cultural activities in the Lompoc Valley area.

Further plans, both social and cultural include a program on modeling and sculpture April 14 and the annual Founders Day luncheon April 24 at the Valley Bowl. The latter honors Walter W. Ross who founded the sorority 40 years ago in Kansas. All local chapters will participate and announce their individual choice for "Girl of the Year" title.

Plans were made for the chapter's preferential tea to be held April 18 and for a cotton candy sale to be held May 1 in the Shopping Center.

honest emotion than a woman.

Those who consistently hide their true feelings suffer from a variety of ailments, chronic stomach disorders and skin diseases, to name two. Be grateful that your husband is able to give vent to his emotions. It's healthy!

DEAR ABBY: I have been married twice. My first marriage was miserable. My second, wonderful.

My problem is that my mother never throws anything away. She has the wedding gown from my first marriage hanging in the closet of her house. Every time I go over there I see it, and it bugs me. I've told her several times to please give it away, or throw it away. Just get rid of it because it stirs up such unpleasant memories.

She says, "Maybe one day your daughter will want to get married in it."

I said, "Over my dead body." Abby, my daughter is only 10; and besides that gown is 20 years old and yellow. What can I do?

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: If the gown belongs to you (and it seems to me that it does — even if your mother paid for it), you can remove it from the closet and dispose of it any way you wish. It's difficult to believe that you mother has your best interests at heart, if she knows how you feel and keeps it hanging where you will see it every time you visit.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the traveling salesman whose wife didn't like housework, fed the kids peanut butter sandwiches and potato chips, but she'd jump into bed with him anytime. Tell him I will take her off his hands.

With a woman like that to come home to, I'd have enough incentive to make millions, which of course would pay for a full-time, live-in maid.

I don't like housework, either. But I sure like to house.

Annual dinner discussed by Mission Vieja

Mission Vieja 4-H
Mary Mason, reporter

Discussed by Mission Vieja 4-H Club this week was the annual spaghetti dinner to be held Monday, April 19 in Lompoc High School cafeteria. A coke auction and exhibits will be added attractions.

The event is open to the public and tickets will be sold at the door. Dinner cost is $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12. Serving will be from 6-7:30 p.m.

Meeting in Veterans Memorial Hall, members planned their involvement in an Easter egg hunt for under-privileged children Wednesday in Ryon Park. Appointed on the egg hunt committee were Marilyn Mathes, Michelle Ward, Dick Starbuck, Cathy and Anna Domingos, Brad, Barbara and Mark Sousa; May Hayes, Christine Tykeson, Cindy and Howard Lukk; Tracy Craig, Mark Bolts, Mary Mason, Barbara Machado, Stephanie Wright, Debbie Bright and Candy Mintz.

Members were invited to judge livestock at Cal Poly April 12. Announced by Robert Hunt, club advisor, were details of 4-H summer camp. The club will give a scholarship award to one member.

Announced by Mrs. Joe Machado was the next club shoot at Sportsman's Field May 9.

Howard Lukk, Mary Hayes and Christine Tykeson will soon be on the "Looking at Lompoc" radio program of Station KNEZ.

An event of April 30 will be the 4-H area dress review in which Mission Vieja girls will participate.

Sr. Citizens group visits Las Vegas

Enjoying a three day holiday in Las Vegas last week were 43 members of Lompoc Sr. Citizens Club. On their annual tour of the fun spot, members visited the various casinos and saw such entertainment as Debbie Reynolds, Vicky Carr, The Irish Band, Wayne Newton and Polynesian Dancers.

This year the local group filled one bus. Their hope is to revisit the city this fall with twice as many of their group.

New members are sought for the club. Annual dues are $1 and an added $1 is charged for a badge. This is needed as a pass to many activities in the community at reduced rates.

Next planned tour is to Catalina Island June 8-9.

Carmen-Hopkins nuptials are held

Hawaii is setting for the honeymoon

On their Hawaiian honeymoon are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Hopkins, nee Constance Diane Carmen. The couple's marriage took place Sunday afternoon, April 4, in Vandenberg AFB Chapel 1. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Chaplain (Lt. Col.) William Kopelke.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Carmen, 3997 Spica Way, Vandenberg Village. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Hopkins of La Canada.

Of silk faille and lace was the bride's wedding gown, styled with bodice and long sleeves trimmed with French lace insertions and pearls, the A-line skirt and detachable train, edged with lace. A headpiece of white roses and blue stephanotis held her triple tiered elbow length veil. White roses, blue stephanotis and baby's breath fashioned her bridal bouquet. She carried a linen handkerchief of her greatgrandmother and wore a lucky coin brought from Ireland by her cousin.

Mrs. Steven Widhalm was the honor matron, gowned in a long flock-embroidered dress with underskirt of pastel blue, empire waist, high neckline and long sleeves. She wore a matching blue picture hat and carried a blue nosegay.

Similarly styled were the gowns of bridesmaids: Miss Cindy J. Carmen, sister of the bride; Miss Diane Leary and Mrs. Margaret Martinez. Their pastel underskirts were of yellow, pink and blue, respectively. Each wore a matching picture hat and carried a colored nosegay.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was Thomas M. Edwards, Jr. of Sunnyvale. Ushers were Mark Hopkins, brother of the bride; Les Jepson, John Roese of Los Angeles and Jerry Sapiro of San Francisco.

Michael Carmen, brother of the bride served as the candle lighter.

Nuptial vocalist was Mrs. Reed Lawton, aunt of the bridegroom. Selections were "If I Could Tell You" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Vandenberg Non-commissioned Officers Club was setting for the wedding reception. Attending the guest book and gifts was Mrs. Norman Johnson. Cutting the wedding cake was Mrs. Kenneth Randall; serving punch, Mrs. Thomas Edwards and Mrs. Charles Hansen.

Decorating the rooms were mixed bouquets of spring flowers. Cherub candelabra, blue and white carnations and mums graced the wedding cake table.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Carmen wore a blue silk peau de soie A-line dress, matching blue

Nursery School program slated Tuesday night

"Explaining Death to Children" will be the subject of Rev. Richard E. Harris, speaking Tuesday night to United Church Nursery School Parents. The meeting is called for 8 p.m. in the church education building in Vandenberg Village. It is open to the public.

Discussed will be all aspects of death, including the effect on a child of separation by divorce, which is often interpreted as death by a child.

The nursery school will move into the education building in September and at that time begin full day care. Public school holidays will continue to be followed. The morning program will continue as always for those wanting two or three mornings.

Starting April 13, a child study group will meet on four Tuesdays in the education building.

Scheduled for Saturday, May 22 from 10 a.m.-12 noon, is an open house and art showing of the pupils' work. Persons of all ages are invited to observe or to participate in painting and gluing, clay work or play with the school equipment. It is hoped to have at least one sample of each pupil's art work for the display.

This year's school term will close May 27 for three year olds and the following day for four year olds. Registrations are being taken by Sylvia Harris, director, for the 1971-72 term.

Retired Persons will host guest speaker

The monthly meeting of the local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will be held at the Veterans Memorial Building at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, April 15. Featured will be a talk on local police problems by Lieutenant Howard Reshaft of the Lompoc Police Department. Following the regular business session refreshments will be served.

accessories and a pink rose corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue and white paisley dress with blue accessories and pink rose corsage.

For the couple's wedding trip the bride wore a blue and white A-line dress with matching coat, white accessories and white rose corsage. A graduate of Cabrillo High School class of 1968, she has earned an A.A. degree from Allan Hancock College (to be awarded in June). She has been employed with the 6595 Aerospace Test Wing at Vandenberg.

The bridegroom has a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from the University of California, Berkeley; a masters degree in mechanical engineering and aerospace management from University of Southern California. He is currently pursuing a PhD and is employed at Litton Industries in Van Nuys.

Upon their return, the newlyweds will live in Santa Monica.

Coming from Nebraska City, Neb. for the wedding were the bride's grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blaker and Mrs. Fred Carmen.

Parents of the bride hosted a buffet dinner party in their home following the newlyweds departure for the immediate family and out of town guests from Los Angeles.

Hosting the rehearsal dinner at Mattei's in Los Olivos Friday night were parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hopkins of La Canada. Present were 32 guests, members of the wedding party and out of town guests. The latter included Mrs. Henrietta Stewart of Manhattan Beach, aunt of the bridegroom.

Nina McCallister is shower honore

Miss Nina McCallister was the honore at a bridal shower Saturday afternoon in the home of her sister, Mrs. Mariano (Betsy) Mendiola, 1001 W. Pine Ave. Co-hostess was another sister, Mrs. William Pate of Santa Barbara.

Miss McCallister will wed SSgt. Edward E. Cooper, currently stationed with the U.S. Air Force in Vietnam. He expects to return here May 1. The wedding is planned for June 14 in Kenton, Ohio, home of his parents.

Icing rosebuds and doves carrying a wedding ring decorated the shower cake, inscribed "Best Wishes, Nina." Punch was also served from the table covered with a floral cloth in red and white. A red carnation corsage was presented to the honore.

Your birthday By Stella

FRIDAY, APRIL 9 — Born today, you have an extremely methodical nature which is reflected in your calm approach to whatever you are doing. There are those who have had dealings with you and, in consequence, think of you as one without emotions — but these are the people who fail to realize that a steady nature is not an unfeeling nature. You possess emotions that are deep—and often dark. But you keep them under control, knowing that when you need them, they will be there to work for—and not against—you.

A firm person, you make up your mind with great deliberation. You are thoughtful and, in the long run, entirely just in your decisions. You never try to blame others for your set backs and failures—though there are times when others are obviously to blame. At the same time, however, you are not very willing to share the glory when you are successful. You know that you work hard, long, and often alone, and that you deserve to succeed. Somewhat overdependent upon schedules, you may miss a number of opportunities in your lifetime simply because they come at an inconvenient time. You must learn to drop everything if necessary to take advantage of the chance to make exceptional gain, whether material or spiritual. Otherwise, your success will be only a percentage of what it might be.

ZODY By MARV MYERS

"But, general, what if your orders contradicted your men's horoscopes on that particular day?"

Saturday, April 10

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—This can well be a Saturday you will remember for a long time. Make an effort to become known to strangers in the community.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Postpone a departure until late in the day. Morning is no time to put distance between yourself and home base.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—You are likely to run into trouble if you insist upon taking short cuts today. Allow children to help to their hearts' content.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—All should go well with you in the afternoon—if you've taken the proper precautions against accident in the morning.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—A day that gets better as the hours progress. Don't be disturbed by a tendency to overplay your hand during morning hours.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—The Virgo who fails to keep a promise to children may well find himself in difficulties with adults by this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Don't jump at the chance to change present circumstances. Study the situation carefully—and take another's wishes into account.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Go about the business of making friends and influencing people in a calm, self-confident manner. Otherwise, you will put others off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Business considerations must not be forgotten even though they may interfere drastically with Saturday plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—The wise Capricorn will not question another's motives. Take what occurs at face value—at least for now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—A day when conservative action brings Aquarius close to a goal of long-standing. To rush things could be to forfeit them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Where younger members of the family are concerned, you would be wise to postpone any decision that could effect radical change.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is an unusual problem. South succeeded in going down two at his one-trump contract. He rose with dummy's king of clubs at trick one—a correct start. He led the 10 of diamonds, covered East's king with the ace, went to dummy with the heart ace, led a second diamond, won the queen and led a third diamond to West's nine. West led the queen of hearts which was won by dummy's king. A club lost to West's ace, whereupon a heart lead gave East two heart tricks and a spade lead back ended all hope for the declarer.

At different stages in the play, South could have made one, two or three no-trump. See if you can find these lost opportunities.

The first was when East played the king of diamonds. South could have ducked. If East led back a spade they would have collected four spades and the ace of clubs and South would have made his contract on the nose.

The play for three no-trump would have been for South to play three rounds of diamonds immediately. This would put West on lead with the nine and his best play would be to lead ace and another club, but this would allow South two clubs, two hearts and five diamonds for a total of nine. The chance for eight tricks occurred when West led the queen of hearts. South should let this hold. If West played his last heart South would make nine. If West shifted to ace and another club, South would only make one heart trick, two clubs and five diamonds for eight tricks.

Inside corner The old ball game

Scott Ostler

Some people say baseball is dying in popularity, that it's no fun to go out to the ballpark anymore because the game is boring. I don't agree. I attended the three Lompoc tournament games in Santa Maria this week and can report truthfully that I didn't fall asleep once.

Not meaning to slight the Conquistadores by not covering their tournament also, but my car balked at the idea of cruising down to Palm Springs and back. Besides that, they sometimes need me here at the Record office to help put together the sports section. So it was that I had to pass up a trip to the sunny desert in favor of three trips to the un-sunny confines of ancient Elks Field, site of the Santa Maria - Righetti Easter Tournament.

The trend in baseball today is to play the game in gleaming, temperature - controlled glass and steel super - stadiums, on surfaces suitable for carpeting Howard Hughes' rumpus room. These stadiums are nice, but you feel guilty when you litter the nice clean grandstands with your peanut shells.

But 'creaking old Elks Field is like a page out of baseball history, a throwback to the old days of baseball when players read the funnies instead of the stock reports.

The splintery green grandstands and the colorful advertisements painted on the high wooden outfield walls reminded me of old Gilmore Field in Hollywood, where I used to watch the Hollywood Stars battle the Los Angeles Angels in the Pacific Coast League, before major league baseball invaded the West.

Elks field has to be one of the last parks around that still has knotholes in the outfield fence. And Lompoc's last two games were played under the lights, which seemed to add even more to the genuine baseball atmosphere. The lighting was not the best. On the bank of floodlights atop the light pole in right field there were only about four lights working out of 20 or so. The report I got was that the burnt out bulbs weren't replaced because the pole was so rotten no one would venture to climb it.

So the field was about as well - lit as a cheap pool hall. You could develop film in the outfield. In fact the brightest light in the ball park came from the hot dog stand behind third base.

Speaking of hot dogs, I had scarcely been at the park a few minutes when I developed a case of the Ball Park Munchies. For the non - baseball fan, (who probably isn't reading this anyway), this is a condition the symptom of which is uncontrollable craving for hot dogs, popcorn, candy, and other snack bar goodies which overcomes ones better dietetic judgement. And the tube steaks served up by the concession stand were excellent. So was the popcorn, cola, coffee, candy bars and bubble gum - and the Alka-Seltzer after the game.

The biting cold couldn't discourage the hardy baseball fans. A good sized group of Lompoc rooters swelled the grandstands to near capacity (about 300). Most of the fans were smart enough to bring blankets. I opened the tournament with a sweater, altered my clothing lineup in the second game to include a heavy jacket, and finally went to my bullpen for an army blanket the final night. I still wasn't warm, but the small fire I built in the corner of the pressbox helped a little.

I relaxed with my scorebook, program, hot dog and cola, and thought to myself that it was indeed good to be out at the old ball game.

Returning home from their respective Easter tournament victories, the Lompoc and Cabrillo baseball teams had more gold on their hands than a sloppy dentist. They had enough trophies to open up a pawn shop.

Besides the two winners trophies, there were individual trophies for everyone on both teams. The all - tournament team from the Coachella Valley still hasn't been announced, but at least a couple Conqs will be on it.

Lompoc did fairly well, placing five men on the 10 - man all - tourney squad. Roy Howell, Joe Brooks, Jeff Bratz, Roy Thomas and Ted Torres took home the extra gold.

Besides winning their tourney, the Conquistadore squad had an enjoyable time in the desert. Part of the team browsed around Palm Springs on their day off Tuesday, and some elected to stay back at the motel and lounge around the pool.

"I think it was a great experience for the boys," commented Coach Dick Wilson when the team got back to town yesterday afternoon. "Some of the kids have never really been out of town, and I think everyone really had a good time."

Wilson reported that the competition in the tournament was stiff, especially in the pitching department. "Two or three of the pitchers we faced could do well in our league."

The twin tourney wins gave a big boost to the growing sports prestige of this city in CIF circles. The big game a week from today between the two teams will be the game of the year, up to this point at least.

In order to more adequately cover Hancock JC baseball, the Record Sports section has added Mac Fisher to the lineup as Hancock correspondent. Mac is a pitcher on the Hancock squad, and in the first game he was to report, he turned out to be the star. It was Tuesday's tournament game against Chaffee and Mac's clutch relief pitching saved the game for the Bulldogs. Fisher not only reports the news, he makes it.

Rich Allen may sit out opener

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richie Allen, the first legitimate slugger to wear a Los Angeles Dodger uniform since Frank Howard was traded to Washington in 1964, probably will be on the bench tonight for the club's home opener against the San Diego Padres.

The first of three games this weekend with the Padres launches the 10th anniversary year of Dodger Stadium.

Capt. Emil Praeger, the man, who designed Walter O'Malley's edifice, and Jack Yount, the builder, will take part in home opening ceremonies.

Traded to Los Angeles in the offseason by St. Louis, Allen has been hampered this season by an infected foot. In fact, he's hitless in five trips as a Dodger.

Dodger Stadium, which now happens to be the third oldest park in the National League next to Wrigley Field in Chicago and Candlestick Park in San Francisco, opened April 12, 1962.

The opening came four years after O'Malley moved the club from Brooklyn to Los Angeles. The Dodgers played their first four seasons here at the Coliseum.

Rated by many as the club to beat in the National League West with a bevy of young stars, the Dodgers lost two of their first three starts at Houston.

It took a shutout by Claude Osteen for Los Angeles to get its one victory.

26th Annual Lompoc Relays set for tomorrow at Huyck

500 high school track and field athletes are crossing their fingers, hoping for clear skies that will allow the running of the 26th Annual Lompoc Relays tomorrow afternoon at Huyck Stadium in Lompoc.

The meet was originally scheduled for March 13 (obviously an unlucky day), but it looked like rain, so the meet directors rescheduled it.

The weather forecast for the weekend makes no mention of rain, so chances are good that the relays will be held as scheduled.

14 high schools, including the eight Santa Barbara County League schools, will participate. From outside the SBCL will be Bishop Garcia, Buena, King City, St. Josephs, Santa Paula and Santa Ynez.

Field events get under way at 10 a.m. and the relays begin at noon. The meet is expected to end at about three p.m.

Lompoc, which has won the three relays they've been in this year (Buena Ventura, Santa Barbara Easter, and King City) will be one of the favorites to come out on top in the team point standings.

Lompoc will be tough to beat in hurdle events, as they feature one of the country's top hurdle men in Charlie Jackson (mentioned in the March 1971 issue of Letterman magazine as one of the best bets in the country to break track records this year).

In the distance relays Lompoc can lean on Terry Williams, who ranks in the CIF top ten in both the mile and two mile. Soaring Sid Dansby will be the meet favorite in the high jump. He has gone 6-6.

Jackson will get plenty of competition in the hurdles, as Dos Pueblos star Bill Cheadle is also among the class athletes over the sticks in CIF.

Representing Cabrillo will be speedster Elcanah Dunbar, hurdler Cecil Gordon, Doug Maple in the shot, Victor Moore in the high jump (Dansby's stiffest competition), and Mike Drouin in the pole vault, among others.

Some of the other top athletes attending the meet are listed in the CIF best track and field marks on this page.

Help needed for Relays

Free Coffee and donuts anyone? Interested track buffs wishing to help with the Lompoc Relays (timing, starting, hurdle crews, etc.) are encouraged to attend a brief meeting tomorrow at nine a.m. prior to the meet in room P5 at Lompoc High.

Coffee and donuts will be served.

For further information, contact either Lompoc Athletic director Jim Spruill of Track Coach Frank Hiatt.

HAPPY WINNERS. The Cabrillo High baseball team gathers around the trophy they won for first place in the Coachella Valley 20-30 Club Easter Tournament. Picture was taken when the team returned to town yesterday afternoon after a successful three day trip to Palm Springs. The team won three out of four games in the tournament, beating Brawley High 5-4 for the championship Wednesday.

Mays' grand slam not enough to beat Pads

United Press International
Willie Mays is doing everything for the San Francisco Giants these days except pitch.

Unfortunately for the Giants, that's where they needed help Thursday night as they succumbed to the San Diego Padres 7-6 despite Mays' five RBI game that included a grand slam homer.

Mays, who'll be 40 on May 6, has started off this season with one of those hot streaks that he's noted for. He's hit three homers in three games this year and is 6-for-14 with seven runs batted in.

He tagged Dick Kelley for the grand slam in the seventh inning to highlight a five-run rally that wiped out a 4-1 San Diego lead and gave the Giants a 6-4 margin. It was the eighth grand slam of Mays' career and gave him 631 career homers, just 83 short of Babe Ruth's 714.

But reliever Don McMahon couldn't hold the lead in the ninth inning. Singles by Don Mason, Dave Campbell and Larry Stahl produced the first run. Clarence Gaston then singled in the tying run and Nate Colbert, who had struck out three times, tagged McMahon for the game-winning hit. McMahon, who was 41 on Jan. 4, blanked the Padres in the seventh and eighth innings before being tagged for five hits in the ninth.

In the other three National League games, Houston beat Chicago 7-3, Pittsburgh blanked Philadelphia 2-0 and Montreal topped New York 6-2.

In the only two American League games, Cleveland nipped Boston 3-2 and Kansas City edged California 3-2.

Willie Stargell, who struck out in his two previous trips against Woody Fryman, doubled in the only two runs of the game in the sixth inning as Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia. Luke Walker threw a five-hitter to gain the victory.

The left-handed hitting Stargell credited Manager Danny Murtaugh for letting him hit against left-handers like Fryman. "Hitting against lefties is just a matter of playing against them," Stargell said. "Harry Walker said I couldn't hit lefties but I always knew I could. Murtaugh gave me a chance to prove it. He could have gone to Jose Pagan after I struck out twice against Fryman but he stuck with me." Stargell noted he hit .273 against lefties last year and was .260 against righties.

Jack Hiatt, obtained from Chicago in a winter deal, hit two run-scoring doubles as Houston beat the Cubs. Jack Billingham pitched a four-hitter to gain the victory. Ken Holtzman took the loss.

John Bateman drove in three runs with two hits and Steve Renko scattered 10 hits as Montreal beat New York. Gary Gentry gave up six runs and took the loss but three of them in the seventh were unearned because of an error by Bob Aspromonte.

Rookie Gomer Hodge singled in two runs with two out in the ninth inning to lift Cleveland past Boston. Hodge entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the eighth and doubled and scored the first Cleveland run on John Lowenstein's single. He then tagged Ken Tatum—the reliever the Red Sox got from California in the Tony Conigliaro deal—for the hit that won the game in the ninth.

Cookie Rojas' bases-loaded double in the third drove in two unearned runs as Kansas City capitalized on four California errors for the victory over the Angeles.

Andy Messersmith, who homered in the fifth, took the loss even though he left after eight innings without giving up an earned run.

Robertson may miss action

Lakers buck odds against Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— Defense, rebounding and bench strength all figured to be keys to success when the Milwaukee Bucks and Los Angeles Lakers open their National Basketball Association Western Conference playoffs here tonight.

With star guard Jerry West sidelined with a leg injury, forcing the Lakers to insert top reserve Jim McMillian into the lineup, the Bucks appeared to have the edge in bench strength

—although their own super guard, Oscar Robertson, also may miss some action because of a recurring groin injury.

"He told me he thought he slipped and aggravated the muscle in the last San Francisco game," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said. "We'll have to wait until tonight to see how he feels."

"If he's not up to par, we'll have to use Lucius Allen more."

But even if that turned out the case, Costello believed he still had a stronger reserve stockpile to choose from than Lakers' Coach Joe Mullaney.

Costello admitted, however, the Lakers "have adjusted and are playing well" since losing West for the playoffs.

Defensively, the Bucks also appeared to have the edge, at least on the basis of their five regular-season games with the Lakers—four of which Milwaukee won by holding Los Angeles to 100 points or less. The Lakers' only win, 116-93, came on Feb. 5 in Los Angeles and, after the Bucks got that bad one out of their system, they went on to win their next 20 games in a row for an NBA record.

The Bucks' wins over Los Angeles were by scores of 117-100, 113-88, 122-88 and 112-97. Three of the wins came here and one in Los Angeles.

In the five games, Milwaukee shot at a 47.1 per cent clip for an average of 111.4 points per game while Los Angeles shot only 39.7 per cent and averaged 97.8 per game.

The Bucks held an overall 277-254 advantage in rebounding but the Lakers' front line was superior to the Milwaukee baseline trio.

Hathaway had a no - hitter going until the seventh inning. Falcon Don Freeman broke the no - hit bid by reaching first on an infield hit.

Don Highstreet followed with another single, but Hathaway fought back and retired the next three hitters.

Hancock came back in the eighth to add another run. Lynn Bautista reached first on one of his four hits of the afternoon. Wes Forman sacrificed Bautista to second. Davis reached first with an error and Bautista scored.

Carlos Gonzalez singled, but the side was retired without any further run production.

In the ninth, Randy Foster led off for Hancock with a single. Trujillo doubled in Foster for the fourth run.

Wilt Chamberlain, the NBA rebounding leader, grabbed 75 boards in the five meetings while his Milwaukee counterpart, Lew Alcindor, took down 66. Los Angeles forwards Hap Hairston and Keith Erickson snared 82 rebounds between them while Milwaukee's forecourt duo collected a total of only 70.

Alcindor, the NBA's top scorer during the regular campaign, bested Chamberlain in that department in the Bucks-Lakers meeting with an average of 27.6 points per game to 23.2 for the Los Angeles center.

The Bucks had an added advantage going into

Rentzel sentence: probation

DALLAS (UPI) — Flanker Lance Rentzel of the Dallas Cowboys football team pleaded guilty to indecent exposure and received a five-year probation sentence Thursday. Rentzel said he did not intend to let the incident end his athletic career.

Coach Tom Landry declined comment except to say Rentzel is "a member of our squad."

Rentzel, 27, who pleaded guilty to exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl last November, agreed to psychiatric and medical treatment.

"I plan to work with my doctor until this problem is solved," he said. "I'm sorry I had to have my wife (singer Joey Heatherton) and family suffer because of this."

Rentzel voluntarily removed himself from the active Cowboy roster when he was indicted last year, but indications were after the trial Thursday he will rejoin his teammates. "I told them I'd be back and I will," he said. "I can't end my athletic career this way."

Beaned Lamb recovering

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—John Lamb, Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Presbyterian - University Hospital following an operation for removal of a blood clot on the brain.

The 24-year-old righthanded hurler was operated on Thursday by Dr. Anthony Susan.

Lamb was injured Feb. 26 during spring training at Bradenton, Fla., when he was struck below the right ear in batting practice. The injury was diagnosed as a slight skull fracture and he resumed working out three weeks later.

tonight's game in that they had more time to prepare for the series.

The Lakers needed seven games to eliminate the Chicago Bulls in their first-round playoffs and did not finish up until Tuesday night. The Bucks ousted San Francisco four games to one in their firstround series which ended last Sunday.

The second game of the Bucks-Lakers playoffs will be here Sunday before the two teams head for Los Angeles for the third and fourth games next week.

Both games here are sellouts and the Bucks announced Thursday they received NBA permission to lift the local television blackout for the contests.

Father of the masters

A personal memory of Bob Jones

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

AUGUSTA, Ga. — (NEA) — The frail figure of Robert Tyre Jones Jr., still sets the tone at the Masters. It was his golf tournament, devised in 1934 as his perpetuating memorial. He was only 32.

Bob Jones (he never has liked being called Bobby) funneled all his devotion to the game which had made him a hero of the Golden Twenties into the one week of spring rites at the course carved out of the rolling clay hills of northern Georgia.

And it is a bit of sadness that he can no longer be at the white frame cottage on the edge of the 10th tee. He is desperately ill from syringomyelia, the progressive disease of the spinal cord which has made him an invalid for more than 20 years.

The last time I spoke to Bob Jones was at that cottage six Masters ago (that's how you tell time in Augusta). I was able to get in through the intercession of my good friend Furman Bisher of Atlanta. Jones was deep in an easy chair, his omnipresent wheelchair nearby, casually wearing a robe of green, the color which has become symbolic of the Masters.

To show you how time doesn't change very much, he was talking then about a young golfer who had burished the course the day before with a marvelous 64.

"It was probably the finest round of golf ever played," said Jones deliciously. "I don't see how you could play any better. Nobody ever combined his power with his style. No, style is a person's individual expression of himself. I should say his power and form. He has a beautiful swing, so effortless it looks like he's not putting anything into it."

Jones was talking about Jack Nicklaus, and all his thoughts still pertain, for Nicklaus still is the dominant figure in the Masters field, and nobody plays golf better than he.

A tribute from the great can be cherished unnatural-

SHAVING STROKES

4-Take One More Club

I would guess that 75 per cent of all shots to the green are way short of the pin. Arnold Palmer, of course, is the exception. He isn't afraid to hit the ball up to the hole, and that's why he's able to make those famous charges—even today.

If I were you, I would make a habit of hitting one more iron than you think you need. If you figure a shot at the pin to be a 6-iron, take a 5-iron instead. I think you'll find you're almost never too long, and you will stop being so short.

Analyze your play for a couple of weeks and see if this isn't the case. Count the number of times you come up short or long, then take an extra club and see if the percentages don't improve strikingly. You may say that you'll go over the green. I really doubt it. I've seen too many shots come up well shy.

Even if you do go over, you're generally better off than if you'd taken less club and been short. On modern

McAlister and Hines duel in Pac-8 meet

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA, defending Pacific-8 champion, hosts Stanford and University of Southern California faces California in a double dual meet on the Bruins' fast Tartan track Saturday.

Although they actually won't be competing against each other, the Conference action matches two of the world's top long jumpers—James McAlister of UCLA and Southern Cal's Henry Hines.

McAlister, a freshman who will report for spring football practice next week, leaped his career best of 26 feet, 6 1-2 inches last weekend. Hines has a top effort of 26-5.

The 100-yard dash field is

ly. Years ago there was a press tournament at St. Andrews in Westchester County, N.Y., to celebrate the 100th anniversary of this country's oldest golf course. While most of the writers were out hacking, one, a little timid about showing off his lack of style (no, form), hung around the clubhouse. Bob Jones was there.

Already the roots of social ferment were dug in and spreading. The Supreme Court decision of 1954 ordering integration in the south had been handed down. Jones was a lawyer, but his views reflected his patrician upbringing. And I recall a sense of shock when he said he was against mixing blacks and whites in the same school system because the blacks were too sexually precocious. He was, however, gentle in his tone and understood that change was inevitable.

The conversation was cut short so that all could go out and participate in a putting contest which would cap the outing. The timid one went along, too, and took his turn

Hannum shifts to Denver Rockets

DENVER (UPI)—Alex Hannum, the wandering minstrel of the pro basketball circuit, said farewell to San Diego Thursday and joined the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association as head coach, general manager and president.

"We agreed not to reveal the terms, but it's the most lucrative contract I've ever signed," Hannum said. "It's a very, very happy day for me. It's the culmination of many years of searching for the right position. I hope to make Denver my home from now on."

Hannum, who signed a five-year contract with Denver, had coached the San Diego Rockets since 1969. San Diego finished third in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division last season with a 40-42 win-loss mark.

The 48-year-old Hannum has had five jobs in the ABA and NBA since 1956. During that period, he won three championships—with the at tapping the ball around the green. He actually won the contest.

The prize was a putter, to be presented by Robert Tyre Jones Jr., the most famous golfer ever.

I still have that putter and use it, if ignobly. But the greater reminder is a framed 8x10 picture at home showing a man sitting, extending his hand in congratulations. It is my memory of the Master golfer.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

St. Louis Hawks in 1957-58, the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA in 1966-67, and with the Oakland Oaks of the ABA in 1968-69.

"Our first priority is player personnel," Hannum said. "We'll have to study the draft list, then go out and try to sign the players."

RAINBOWS TOUR JAPAN

SANJO, Japan (UPI)—The University of Hawaii basketball team, led by the 18 points of center Bob Nash, defeated Meiji University, 99-69, at the Sanjo High School gym Wednesday night in the opener of the Rainbows' playing tour of Japan.

TO DEFEND TITLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cleveland's Chuck Spencer will defend his North American bantamweight title against Davey Vasquez on April 19, it was announced Thursday. The two fighters have signed to fight a 12-round bout.

Coody takes Masters early lead with 66

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—The way Texan Charlie Coody figures it, the nightmare he lived through two years ago when he let a chance at the Masters golf championship slip through his fingers may be just the thing that wins it for him this year.

The 33-year-old Coody, who never has won a major championship in eight years as a tournament golfer, stormed out of the pack with a sixunder-par 66 in

Tournament quotes

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—What they said at the opening round of the Masters golf tournament:

Charles Coody, leader at 66— "I guess you'd say I play conservatively. A lot of these fellows play to make birdies. I just play not to bogey."

Dark-horse Hale Irwin, tied at 69, when asked if he was nervous at the start—"Well, that first fairway was awful narrow."

Defending champion Billy Casper, par 72—"I was lucky to have a 72 the way I played. I'm happy with it."

Barbara Nicklaus, wife of tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus (70) after Nicklaus lifted his head while putting on the 18th green—"You did it again, Jack. That's twice today."

Arnie Palmer, asked to comment on his 73—"Are there any ladies present?"

Angel errors give victory to Royals

ANAHEIM (UPI)—They say in baseball that pitching is the name of the game and rival managers Lefty Phillips of the California Angels and Bob Lemon of the Kansas City Royals stressed that point after the first series between the clubs.

The Angels lost the rubber game Thursday night 3-2 as a result of four California errors that made all the Kansas City runs unearned.

"Errors? They're part of the game," Phillips said. "The only way guys don't make any is if they don't play." The big question mark on the Angels' pitching staff has been Andy Messersmith, who last season was sidelined part of the year by shoulder and rib injuries and finished up in the bullpen.

Messersmith worked eight innings and could have emerged with the win but for his team's errors. Mel Queen, plagued by arm trouble last year, finished up by retiring the Royals in order in the ninth, striking out two men.

"If there's anything good about losing, I'm happy with Andy and Queen," Phillips said. "Andy got strong as he went along. He answered the question whether he was over the troubles that bothered him last year."

Lemon, in turn, was delighted by the seven-inning performance of starter Mike Hedlund, who last year saw limited duty because of a virus infection he suffered while playing winter ball. But the Royals'

Thursday's opening round of the Masters to grab a three-stroke lead over five golfers tied at 69.

And the thought in everyone's mind, including Charlie Coody's, was—remember 1969.

That was the year when the wild final round of the Masters suddenly found Coody the leader as he walked toward the 16th tee, three holes to play. But something happened there under the towering southern pines and the Abilene, Tex., pro bogeyed every one of those last three holes to finish two strokes behind winner George Archer.

"What I learned from that helped me to win another tournament later that year, the Cleveland Open," he said. "Maybe someday it will help me to win a major championship—maybe this one this year."

Coody, tall, sloped-shouldered, and laconic, seized the first-round lead with a three-birdie burst from the 13th through the 15th holes just when it seemed that 69 probably would be good enough for first place. In the five-way tie at 69 were Bob Murphy, Don January, Ray Floyd, Bob Lunn, and darkhorse Hale Irwin.

Tied at 70, four strokes behind Coody, were tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus and Dale Douglass. At one-underpar 71 were Bert Yancey, Tom

Weiskopf, and 47-year-old Art Wall, and a dozen were tied at par 72, including defending champion Billy Casper and the man he beat in last year's playoff, Gene Littler, plus South African Gary Player.

Arnold Palmer, after "the worst round I've played this year," was in another logjam at 73, along with Archer and U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin of England.

New day dawns

More than 600,000 American Indians live in the United States. Two out of three live on or near a reservation, where the unemployment rate is nearly 10 times the national average. The average age is 18; the median family income is $1,700 a year; the high school dropout rate is double the national average and average life expectancy is 20 years younger than the national figure.

The plight of the original American has long been a reproach to all Americans. At last something is being done about it, although with odds this great, the problems cannot be solved overnight.

The battle against the dismal statistics recited above is being waged through self-help programs set up by a partnership among the Office of Economic Development, the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration, other federal agencies and private enterprise.

With the help of a grant from OEO to buy machinery, the Pueblo Laguna Indians of New Mexico are quarrying and marketing a variety of rock found on their land. Only Indians operate the enterprise, from management to sales to the men at the power chisels.

Laguna rock is beginning to make a name for itself. Gulf Oil recently purchased an order for its service stations. The New Mexico State Highway Department is using Laguna rock to build rest stops.

The project will be the basis for establishing other tribally owned businesses which pay their own way and employ Indian people.

On the 16-million-acre Navajo reservation spanning parts of Arizona, New Mexico and Utah, 120,000 Navajos — the largest of all American Indian tribes — are benefiting from a variety of government-private industry projects.

EDA funding of two industrial parks and water and sewer facilities has brought new business to the reservation, including a pilot transistor assembly plant established at Shiprock, N.M., in 1965 by Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp.

The project was floundering until a man named Paul W. Driscoll took over as manager in 1967. Discovering that the Navajo language had no direct equivalent for some English words, he devised such terms as "shiny metal" for aluminum and "tunnel" for oscillator.

To help the workers understand business time concepts, he divided plant clocks into 10 numbered sections, alternately painted red and white, so that instead of referring to so many minutes, workers talk about so many "sections."

The plant is now a profit-making operation, employing 725 Indians who work with the highest degree of competency on even the most intricate machines. Fairchild's turnover rate at Shiprock has been about four per cent a month, the lowest rate in any of its plants.

Driscoll was recently awarded Business Week magazine's second annual business citizenship award for leadership.

In January, the Navajos installed the tribe's ninth chairman. In his inauguration address to a crowd of 7,000 at Window Rock, Ariz., Peter MacDonald outlined three broad goals of his administration:

"First, what is rightfully ours, we must protect; what is rightfully due us, we must claim.

"Second, what we depend upon from others, we must replace with the labor of our own hands and the skills of our own people.

"Third, what we do not have, we must bring into being. We must create for ourselves."

A new day is dawning for the American Indian.

Capitol report by Bruce Biossat

Facts guide Nixon

WASHAGINTON (NEA) President Nixon always has had a streak of fatalism in him, and he's letting it show as he deals with the U.S.-supported incursion into Laos by South Vietnamese forces. He is taking his chances with shaky public opinion.

He knows a poll shows that, of those Americans who wish to express a view, a small majority disapproves the Laotian venture.

In his interview with the New York Times, the President said he had no doubt polls would show the people favoring withdrawals of troops from Europe as well as Vietnam, not to mention military budget cuts. But he added:

"Polls are not the answer. You look at the facts."

What he meant was that he is acting in accord with his judgment of national interest and responsibility. He spoke as if he had just been reading lines by diplomatic historian Herbert Feis. In his new book, "From Trust to Terror," Feis writes:

"Public opinion can inspire or frustrate a president. He can neither ignore nor yield supinely to it. He must be its judge, not its servant.

"...when peace or war is at issue, the president cannot leave the decision to others without forfeiting the responsibilities of his office."

Nixon, having already withdrawn upwards of 220,000 men from Vietnam and indicated his intent to pull out thousands more, clearly is responding to wide public disenchantment with the war. Yet there is fresh evidence that he will manage the pullout only in ways he thinks will maximize South Vietnam's prospects of independent survival. And this, obviously, without too much concern for the public's view.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird's huge new report on U.S. defense posture contains the fresh emphasis. If lingering doubt existed, it is gone. The President does not intend to take the last U.S. forces from Vietnam until he is as satisfied as he can possibly be that Hanoi cannot conquer it.

Though this has often been surmised, the administration from the time of Cambodia in 1970 has justified any heightened military activity as designed to protect U.S. troops and promote their pullout.

Yet Laird's report never talks of "Vietnamization" (build-up of Saigon's forces) as if it were simply a device to ease withdrawals. The report's deadly earnest theme is that we intend to make South Vietnam's forces "self-reliant" against any conceivable aggression from the north.

Laird observes that one of the key assumptions under-lying the Vietnamization program is that "as long as the conflict continued, Free World assistance to South Vietnam would be required."

This, of course, means American assistance. And it means some measure of it until the war is over.

In the third and final phase of Vietnamization as projected by Laird, we would have in that country a residual military advisory commission — along with "whatever small security forces" are needed to protect it. What this all represents in force numbers we may not know for a long time, but the guessing here has been 50,000 men.

Before we get to that, however, we will have to run through Phase II — the period in which Saigon's armies develop fuller air, naval, artillery and logistics capabilities. Our heavy support of the Laos incursion indicates how far off this goal is.

Since South Vietnamese soldiers must learn English as a base for complex training in these crucial support endeavors, Phase II could be a painful, protracted time of transition. And it could test severely Nixon's resolve to withdraw us without imperiling our ally.

Washington calling by Marquis Childs

Hope to capitalize

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — As she walks in, a muted "right on" runs through the small courtroom. Clenched fists are raised. Angela Davis responds with her own clenched first and a slight smile breaks the solemn intensity of her face.

Her Afro hairdo is so big, so bushy, so low on her brow that she seems to look out from a protective cover, her expression pinched, suspicious. The pretrial motions being argued in the Superior Court of Marin County are the start of a contest extending far into the future, with Angela Davis a lay figure having the cloak of martyrdom wrapped around her.

It is a contest that need not have taken this form. It will serve no purpose except that of the militants who want to demonstrate that American society is wholly racist, with no justice for a black Communist. Miss Davis, 27 years old, a philosophy teacher of middling ability at the University of California in Los Angeles, was fired because she was an avowed Communist.

Since she did not have academic tenure, if her appointment had simply expired the issue would not be posed as it is today. She stands accused of being an accomplice in the murder of four persons who were shot in a getaway attempt from this same court. For Gov. Ronald Reagan, Attorney General Evelle Younger and the conservative majority on the university board of regents her conviction is a political imperative. That is one reason the prosecutor is an assistant attorney general, Albert W. Harris Jr., rather than the district attorney as would normally be the case.

The grand jury that indicted her found that she bought the guns that were used in the getaway attempt in the midst of the trial of three convicts from San Quentin known as the Soledad brothers. She is alleged to have signed the registration certificates when she purchased the guns. And her codefendant in this trial, Ruchell Magee, is charged with firing the gun that took the life of Judge Harold Haley in the getaway van.

Her lawyers claim that, however proof of the purchase may develop in the course of the trial, the grand jury transcript fails to link her with the transfer of the guns to those who used them. This may be the weakness of the state's case as it progresses through months of argument and endless appeals certain to reach the United States Supreme Court.

But for the matter of defense attorneys the legalisms are unimportant alongside their basic strategy, which is to make it seem that the white establishment has conspired against a brilliant young black woman persecuted for her political beliefs. One judge had already disqualified himself when Magee charged him with prejudice.

The court had scarcely begun to hear the pretrial motions under a second judge, Alan A. Lindsay, when the defense lawyers presented a 35-page document charging him with bias and prejudice. The document noted his appointment to the bench in 1969 by Reagan. It accused him of "covert racism" as president of the Oakland school board when that city across the bay was rocked by racial turbulence in the early '60s.

Judge Lindsay has 10 days in which to pass on the motion. He can summon another judge to hear arguments on the bias and prejudice charge. Or he can disqualify himself as the first judge did.

This would be an easy way out of what promises to be an ordeal fully manifest when the actual trial begins, probably in October. Even in this early stage the publicity apparatus of the national United Committee to Free Angela Davis was at work. Hardly had the motion of prejudice been filed when reporters were handed a five-page release summarizing the charge. The chief defense attorney, Howard Moore of Atlanta, was talking to television cameras in the corridor. That is the pattern shaping up in still another political trial.

The Angela Davis case has a long reach. It is said to be attracting in Europe the kind of interest and

Edsel Murphy

We have just come into possession of a scientific paper written by D.L. Klipstein entitled: "The Contributions of Edsel Murphy to the Understanding of the Behavior of Inanimate Objects." It was the intent of the author to show, by references, that the law of Murphy has produced numerous corollaries. As is well known to those versed in the state-of-the-art, Murphy's law states that "If anything can go wrong, it will."

To show the all pervasive nature of Murphy's work, the author offers a small sample of the application in various fields:

General Engineering — A patent application will be preceded by one week by a similar application made by an independent worker.

All warranty and guarantee clauses become void upon payment of invoice.

An important Instruction Manual or Operating Manual will have been discarded by the Receiving Department.

In the field of mathematics: Any error that can creep in, will. It will be in the direction that will do the most damage to the calculations.

All constants are variables. In a complex calculation, one factor from the numerator will always move into the denominator.

In the field of prototyping and production:

Any wire cut to length will be too short.

Identical units tested under identical conditions will not be identical in the field.

A dropped tool will land where it can do the most damage. (Also known as the law of selective gravitation).

Interchangeable parts won't.

A fail-safe circuit will destroy others.

A self-starting oscillator won't.

A pnp transistor will be an npn.

In the field of specifying:

Specified environmental conditions will always be exceeded.

Manufacturers' spec sheets will be incorrect by a factor of 0.5 or 2.0, depending on which multiplier gives the most optimistic value. For salesmen's claims these factors will be 0.1 or 10.0.

In an instrument or device characterized by a number of plus-or-minus errors, the total error will be the sum of all errors adding in the same direction.

A footnote to the manuscript states: "Manuscript received April 17, 1967; revised June 3, 1967. The work reported herein has not been supported by grants from the Central Intelligence Agency. THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING support that made the Sacco - Vanzetti case in the '20s a focus for anti-Americanism not only of the left but a broad spectrum. The greatly oversimplified drama as seen from afar poses the racist Reagan against a courageous victim framed for her color and her politics."

Needless to say, the Communist Party of the United States, which has fallen on seedy times, will exploit the Davis case to the fullest. Fund-raising drives, rallies, the devices that had come to seem dated for the party will be revived. The fate of the tall, slender young woman in the midst of the uproar will be almost irrelevant.

April 7, 1944

The Easter Party and Dance to be held at the "H" Street USO Easter Sunday night is expected to surpass all previous entertainments staged for the servicemen and their wives.

A week of special training which will include instruction and drills, has been scheduled by Chief Chas. E. Everett for members of the Lompoc Fire Department.

The man with the broom will soon be replaced by power equipment in the work of cleaning the city streets — providing the city can rate a priority ticket with the War Production Board.

April 9, 1943

A recommendation that the reconstruction of the H Street bridge be declared an emergency will be sent to the military authorities in charge of construction in the Pacific area, it was revealed this week by Captain C.B. Hendricks of the Camp Cooke post engineers.

With speed to spare, Lompoc bond buyers "put over" the drive through which an Army medium bomber will be named in honor of the city — "Lompoc Victory."

While construction on Lompoc's federally - financed sewer system has been completed and the contractor in charge has withdrawn, confusion over priorities on long awaited and essential machinery made it appear this week that the city is no nearer having an adequate sewer system than it was two years ago.

Lompoc's population leveled off for the first time in years this week. The Lompoc Community Hospital reported that during the seven-day period no babies were born in the hospital.
